UNQUALIFIED APPRECIATION. BOSTON, November 18, 1875.

I P. STEVENS, ESQ.: Dear Sir .- During the past five years I have had ample opportunity to judge of the merit of VEGE-TINE. My wife has used it for complaints attending a lady of delicate health with more beneficial results than anything else which she ever tried. I have given it to my children under almost every circumstance attending a large family, and always with marked benefit. I have taken it myself with such great benefit that I cannot find words to express my appreciation of its goodness.

While performing my duties as a police officer in this city it has been my lot to fall in with a great deal of sickness. I unhesitatingly recommend VEG-TINE, and I never knew of a case where it did not prove all that was claimed for it. Particularly in cases of a debilitated or impoverished state of the blood its effects are really wonderful; and for all applaints arising from an impure state of the blood it appears to work like a charm, and I do not believe there are any circumstances under which VEGETINE can be used with injurious results, and it will always afford me pleasure to give any further information as to what I know about VEGETINE. WILLIAM B. HILL, Police Station 4.

Two or three long strides brought him to the middle of the stage; with hand uplifted and in deep and tragic tones thus he broke forth:

THE VOX POPULI. Here the gallery became tumultuous in demonstrations of dissatisfaction. They were bound to take the woman's side, right or wrong, and a volley of the choicest Comstock slang rained down from right and left. taking away the lead. Property-owners "Oh, pull down your vest!" "All I ask is a fair hearing," said Mr. Ashton, in a voice loud enough to be heard above the din, and soon the "racket" was sons first assigned by him for "cutting" and robbed of $10 in cash, a lot of clothing, the play were really those given by Miss Eytinge, as he could prove by every member of the company, if the audience desired. No such desire being expressed Mr. Ashton retired once more, and the auditors were left for a few minutes to indulge in guesses as to how the discordant lovers would get along in the last act-for that was the death-scene of "Camille," and she was to be reconciled to "Armand," and die in his arms.

ACT V-DEATH OF CAMILLE. At last the curtain rose, disclosing the poorly-furnished bed-chamber of Camille, who was reclining on her couch. It is the most touching scene of the play, for though hovering on the threshold of the grave, she knows that "Armand" has learned the truth-that her only reason for leaving him was because his father had made her believe that "Armand's" honor and welfare would be imperilled if she remained; she knows that even now her lover is flying home from some foreign land, and she begins to speak of life and hope again: "All nature hopes for spring, and why not I?" In the thrilling earnestness of tone and gesture the audience soon became so absorbed in the play that all thought of the squabble before the curtain was forgotten, until the part where "Armand" arrives and folds "Camille" to his bosom.

Camille: Oh, Armand, you have come; but it is too late! Armand: Oh, Camille! you must not speak of death, but life! Live, oh! live for

This is usually one of the most affecting scenes in the play, and as a general thing the laugh doesn't come in here. But on this particular occasion there was something so indescribably funny about it that the audience burst out in a unanimous guffaw. The short, consumptive cough of "Camille," which usually brings the handker-chief to the tear-dimmed eye of the sympathetic auditor, was unheard in wild tornado of laughter, and the handkerchiefs-where used at all-were jammed into the mouths of their owners. Miss Eytinge and Mr. day night next on "The Sea and Sailor," Ashton were certainly entitled to credit for and on Tuesday night on "Excelsior; or, the thoroughly artistic mastery which they The Man of the Age." Dr. Willetts has displayed over their emotions, for although visited our city before, and his lectures both must certainly have realized the ludicrousness of the situation, they proceeded friends and our people generally will be nothing unusual had happened.

FRAUDS UPON THE UNITED STATES GOVERN-MENT.-In the United States Circuit Court yesterday, Judge Bond presiding, after arrument by Messrs. Lewis and Hoxsey for the Government, and Messrs. John Lyon and John S. Wise for the defence, the case of Ezekiel Myers was submitted to the jury. He was charged in the indictment with carrying on a distillery at Petersburg with intent to defraud the Government. It was represented that the frauds were committed between May 1st, 1874, and 1st of March, 1875, and the prosecutors claimed that they had proved a loss to the Government of CONVICTION OF EZERIEL MYERS FOR Mr. William Lovenstoin Nominated for the House of Delegates.

LEY, AND GENERAL TALIAFERRO_TRI- Bettie Brown (colored), $5, for being disor-BUTES TO THE WORTH AND FIDELITY OF derly and belligerent in the streets. A LEGISLATOR-THE POLITICAL HORIZON BRIGHT AND GROWING BRIGHTER.

The Convention to nominate a Conservative candidate for the House of Delegates met in the old billiard-room of the Ballard House yesterday shortly after 12 o'clock. It was called to order by Mr. B. C. Gray, city superintendent, who stated the object of the Convention and announced himself ready to receive nominations for chairman. On motion of City-Attorney Keiley the Convention requested Mr. Gray to preside, and he consented to do so. On motion of Mr. . S. Tower, Mr. William H. Pleasants was hosen secretary. All the delegates answered at the roll-call except Mr. J. Caskie Cabell. Mr. C. Thon appeared and took his seat as his alternate. Nominations being in order Mr. Keiley placed before the Convention the name of Mr. William Lovenstein. He said he was able to speak of Mr. Lovenstein from knowledge derived from a service in the House with him, and also from the expressions of opinion of members of the Legislature from all sections of the Commonwealth. He could declare that Richmond was never served by any one with larger fidelity and diligence. While not deficient in those high qualities generally supposed to be essential in a legislator, Mr. Lovenstein was specially active and zealous in all that affected the business interests of the city, and his course was eminently respectable, eminently useful, to his constituents, and eminently creditable to himself. When the seection of delegates was last made and Mr. Lovenstein was dropped, Mr. Keiley said ne heard expressions of regret from nearly all the members of the House, from the Speaker down to the humblest, and that, too, without any disparagement of the abilities of the members elected. The nomination of Mr. Lovenstein now would not only be a compliment to that gentleman, but to the Germans, upon whose been so fruitful of good to the Democratic Captain George D. Wise said he arose, as one of the representatives of Monroe Ward, at the command of his constituents, to place before the Convention the name of Colonel Robert B. Berkeley. Colonel Berkeey he thought eminently qualified to fill the position, and had long been one of the most ctive and useful supporters of the Conservative party. Captain Wise thought the honor could not well be bestowed upon a man who deserved better of his fellow-citi-

Clay Ward. 3 Captain Wise said he took great pleasure in moving that the nomination of Mr. Lovenstein be made unanimous. In doing so he corroborated Mr. Keiley's statement of the value of Mr. Lovenstein as a legislator. The nomination of Mr. Lovenstein was then made unanimous. Messrs. Capers and Wise were appointed a committee to inform Mr. Lovenstein of his nomination. . They promptly performed that duty, and escorted Mr. Lovenstein into the Convention hall. Mr. Lovenstein returned thanks for this renewed manifestation of the regard of the citizens of Richmond. For six years he served the city to the best of his ability. If errors were chargeable to the head and not the heart, for he sincerely desired to please his constituents and be useful to them. Mr. Lovenstein regretted the necessity for this election, regretted the resignation of Judge Crump, and knew that it was in vain to hope that he could so well fill the place, for he had not the ability, or oratory, or experience of that distinguished gentleman. He, however, assured the Convention that he would do his best, and he hoped to continue to deserve the good opinion of this people. In conclusion, Mr. Lovenstein spoke very handsomely of Colonel Berkeley, thanked the Convention not only for himself, but on behalf of the German citizens, and indulged in some hopeful prophesies regarding the issue of the great political struggle now absorbing the country's attention.

Colonel Berkeley was next called upon, and readily responded, seeming to be not in the slightest cast down by his defeat. He said that this was a memorial day in his history-the anniversary of his birthday. As a child he was accustomed to receive from his parents some present to mark the occasion, and the custom had been continued by his wife after marrying, and thus the day and gifts were associated. So when he saw the Convention announced to take out differently, and he did not get exactly what he wanted, though he would admit that the nomination of his friend Lovenstein was quite a good birthday present. He wanted to win and worked to win, but having failed had no hard feelings, no heartburnings. The silver lining to his little cloud was the glorious news from the West. Thanking the friends who had so faithfully supported him, Colonel Berkeley bade the nominees-Tilden, Hendricks, Walker, and Lovenstein-God speed. General W. B. Taliaferro, of Gloucester, chairman of the Conservative State Committee, being seen in the crowd of spectators, was invited by the Convention to come forward and address it. He said that within the last twentyfive years he had served in the Legislature with a great many representa-tives of Richmond, but never with a more efficient, faithful, and conscientious worker than Mr. Lovenstein. He had heard Mr. Keiley's remarks in relation to Mr. Lovenstein, and he endorsed them fully. He regarded Mr. Lovenstein as preëminently the representative of the business-men of the city, and could say that in his opinion they never had any one to watch their interests with more sleepless vigilance. General Taliaferro regretted that there were not two delegates to elect, so that the people of Richmond might have honored themselves by nominating Colonel Berkeley too. He said the eloquent voice of Colonel Berkeley had been heard in all parts of the State, and his reputation was wide and extending. After General Taliaferro's speech the Convention adjourned.

THE LAST CHANCE TO SEE PROFESSOR ROBERTS'S ENTERTAINMENT.—This afternoon at 2 o'clock there will be a family matinee at the Theatre for ladies and children. Professor Roberts's entertainment is very interesting, and deserves patronage. It is the best of the kind we have had in Richmond since Cromwell was here; indeed, in many respects it is superior to his. The public really don't know what they miss in not attending the exhibitions. Everybody who can do so ought to see his beautiful pictures. They are entertaining, refined, and well HUMOROUS READINGS AT TRINITY CHURCH. Professor J. Willoughby Reade, of London, England, will give one of his highly-entertaining readings at Trinity church on Monday night for the benefit of the church. These readings have been given in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Nashville. Tenn., and also at many of the watering-places of Virginia during the past summer, with great success. It has been said by competent critics that no published programme can give any idea of the immense amount of enjoyment and mirth there is in Professor Reade's entertainments. He comes endorsed by Bishop Stevens, of Pennsylvania; Bishop Green, of Mississippi; and the press generally. Professor Reade visit-ed Richmond College yesterday, and gave readings at 4 in the afternoon and at night. The professors and students were highly delighted, and speak in the highest terms of his elocutionary powers. He also visited Bellevue public school to witness the workings of our public-school system, and while there delivered a short lecture on elocution, illustrated by some humorous readings, which the children enjoyed a great deal.

MANCHESTER NEWS.

Yesterday was decidedly not a field-day or news in Manchester. The town was searched from end to end, but there was nothing found to warrant further inquiry The only exception was in the person of a youngster who had been "kept in," and in consequence had lost his dinner. His cheeks were interlined by the traces of tears, his shoulders were doubled up, and his hands were thrust into his pockets. His appearnce was such as to warrant an inquiry as to what was the matter, and the hopeful youngster replied: "Jim, he took 'an give me a pin to put under Tom. I put the pin under Tom, and he seen it, and put it under me, and I didn't seen it. I set down on it and jumped higher'n I ever did before and said 'dam it,' and the teacher kep rom fre. OLD ROOFS.

Protect your buildings by using slate paint, which neither cracks in winter nor runs in summer. Old shingle roofs can be painted, looking much better and lasting longer than new shingles without the paint, for one-fourth the cost of re-shingling. On decayed shingles it fills up the holes and pores, and gives a new, substantial roof that lasts for years. Curled or warped shingles it brings to their places, and keeps them there. This paint requires no heating; is applied with a brush, and very ornamental. It is chocolate-color when first applied, but changes to a uniform slate-color, and is to all intents and a uniform slate-color, and is to all intents an
